

PRETTY_N_GRITTY PODCAST

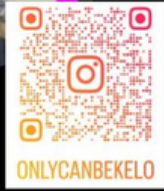

Our show is basically females friends talking over a couple shots of liquor and sometimes the herbs of the earth. The same as if we were home having a girls night. When we go out in our day to day or night life we meet all types of people who love to have conversations with us and we would always be told "Y'all should have your own podcast yo". But we never gave it much thought because we would think who really wants to hear us just talk. We finally decided to do it. We believe we sometimes say things that the average female would not say, only because we both grew up in the presence males so there was not a lot of female influence on how to behave like ladies or what to say. We know females can be sensitive when it comes to sex, relationships and health. We feel it's necessary that we give our female listeners advice from somewhat a male point of view because the men love giving us insight to their world. Quanna is more the creative out of us she likes to give people the benefit of the doubt and think beyond the normal. Della is more the cut to the point and she takes things for what they are and she is going to tell you that. And Kee balances everything out overall with her calm demeanor and intelligence.
